Professor and Head of the School of Management

University of Leicester

Attractive salary

The University of Leicester is a successful and ambitious university which is amongst the UK's top 20 research intensive universities. The Times Higher Education's University of the Year for 2008-9, it aims to be amongst the top institutions in the world, offering state of the art facilities, inspirational teaching and world changing research.

The University now seeks to appoint an outstanding academic leader with an excellent research track record as Head of the School of Management. One of the largest in Europe, the School is ranked 2nd in the UK for Business and Management Studies by The Guardian University Guide 2010. By encouraging a critical approach to work of international standing, the School has developed a distinct portfolio of research and teaching and enjoys a strong reputation in the areas of sustainable business, corporate ethics and globalisation. This is an exciting opportunity to take the School to its next stage of development.

Key requirements:

- International reputation for research leadership and excellence within a relevant discipline
- First class leadership and management skills with a collaborative approach
- Empathy for the distinct research profile of the School and for a broad range of specialisms
